

BIOPHILIA CENTER FIELD TRIP

The E.O. Wilson Biophilia Center in Freeport is back in full swing with its first group of children for the year. Fourth-grade students from Deer Point Elementary School in Bay County came out Sept. 13 to learn about the diversity of life in the Florida Panhandle. They hiked the Longleaf Pine Trail on Nokuse Plantation and received hands-on learning with gopher tortoises, longleaf pine trees and many other educational opportunities. They also explored the center's state-of-the-art exhibit hall. More than 140 children from six counties will be taught every school day this year.
